

EpiCor Does Not Prevent or Treat Swine Flu

No dietary supplement may make claims purporting to diagnose, prevent, treat or cure any disease or illness. Consumers should be aware that some unscrupulous manufacturers may attempt to play on the public's fears regarding the current outbreak of the H1N1 virus, sometimes referred to as the Swine Flu, by offering products for sale that claim to safeguard the buyer from the virus.

EpiCor has been tested and shown to balance the human immune system. A balanced immune system can best react to signals from the body to either boost immune performance when needed, or to suppress an inappropriate reaction to substances that would naturally be harmless.